JOHN EYRAUD, Proprietor.

The wolf of starvation howls at the doors of thousands of men who are well to do and surrounded by plenty. Healthy in the majority of cases, is starvation, pure and simple. It means that blood, brain, nerve, bone and sinew are improperly or insufficiently nourished. Improper, insufficient nourishment is starvation.

When a man's head aches it is because the tissues of the brain do not receive sufficient nourishment from the blood, receive impure and unhealthy nourishment. When a man gets nervous and sleepless, it means that the blood is not properly nourishing the nerves. When his skin breaks out with blotches and pimples and eruptions, it means that the skin is being fed upon the impurities of the blood. Almost every known disease is primarily due to improper nourishment through the blood, which is the life-stream. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is the greatest of all blood-makers and purifiers. It gives edge to the appetite, corrects all disorders of the digestion, makes the assimilation of the life-giving elements of the food perfect, invigorates the liver, promotes secretion and excretion, and vitalizes the whole body. It makes firm, muscular flesh, but does not make corpulent people more corpulent. It cures 98 per cent. of all cases of lingering coughs, bronchial, throat and kindred affections, which, if neglected, lead up to consumption. It is the best of all nerve tonics and restoratives. Kept by all medicine dealers.

"I was taken ill in February, 1892, with headache and pain in my back," writes H. Gaddis, Esq., of 313 South J Street, Tacoma, Wash. "I called in a doctor and he came three times. He said I was bilious but I kept getting worse. I took a course of medicine but it did me no good. I got so poor that I was just skin and bone. I thought I was going to die. I used two bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and it made me sound and well. I saved my life."

No remedy relieves constipation so quickly and effectively as Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. They never gripe.

A GLEAM OF PLEASURE

Along the noisy city ways,
And in this rattling city car,
On this the dreariest of days,
Perplexed with business fret and jar,

When suddenly a young, sweet face Looked on my petulance and pain
And lent it something of its grace
And charmed it into peace again.

The day was just as bleak without,
My neighbors just as cold within,
And truth was just as full of doubt,
The world was just as full of sin.

But in the light of that young smile
The world grew pure, the heart grew warm,
And sunshine gleamed a little while
Across the darkness of the storm.

I did not care to seek her name,
I only said, "God bless thy life."
Thy sweet, young grace be all the same,
Or happy maid or happy wife."
—Phillips Brooks.

MUSIC IN EVERYTHING.

Pretty Surprises Met With in a Geneva Music Box Factory.

The chief industry of Geneva is the manufacture of musical boxes. Thousands of men, women and children are employed in the factories, one of which was visited by a traveler who gives some interesting particulars about his visit.

An attendant invited him to take a seat. He did so, and strains of delightful music came from the chair. He hung his hat on a rack and put his stick in the stand. Music came from both rack and stand. He wrote his name in the visitors' register, and on dipping his pen into the ink music burst forth from the inkstand.

The manager of the factory explained the process of making musical boxes, a business which requires patience and nicety.

The different parts are made by men who are experts in those parts and who do nothing else year in and year out.

The music is marked on the cylinder by a man who has served several years of apprenticeship. Another man inserts in the marked places pegs which have been filed to a uniform length. The comb, or set of teeth, which strikes the pegs and makes the sound is arranged by a man who does nothing else. The cylinder is then revolved to see that every peg produces a proper tone.

The most delicate work of all is the reworking of each peg. It is done by a workman who has a good ear for music. He sees that every peg is in its proper place and is bent at the correct angle.

When the instrument is in its case, an expert examines it to see that the time is perfect.—St. Louis Republic.

Bookkeeping Comes High.

"It makes me tired," said the young man—"these advertisements guaranteeing to teach a person bookkeeping for $10."

"But can't it be done?" was asked. "Not on your life! Why, I spent six months and over $100 to learn the art, and what do you suppose happened at the close of the first year?"

"Got your figures mixed?" "Well, I should smile! There was a discrepancy of $700 between the cash-book and my ledger, and my father had to make it good, while I hunted for another job!"—Brooklyn Citizen.

A Financial Shock.

A man went to a local bank with a check which there was no cash on deposit to meet. When the paying teller declined to respond, the applicant loudly demanded to see the cashier.

"We have no 'cash here' for you," quietly responded the teller. The man with the check saw the point. He moved in circles till he found his way out, tobogganed down the front steps and was led a block by a policeman before sufficiently recovered to make explanation.—Detroit Free Press.

When a girl gets married, the women inquire how her mother took it, as though it were a funeral.—Atchison Globe.

A HARD WON BET.

Carrying Four Bricks Half a Mile Is Not an Easy Task.

"The hardest won bet I ever made," remarked the traveling man, as he shook the ashes off his cigar, "was to carry four bricks half a mile. That sounds like a 'simple' thing to do, doesn't it? Well, you try it and you will find out whether it is or not. Of course the manner of carrying the bricks is important. A man bet me that I couldn't carry two bricks in each hand from where we were back to the hotel and put them up on the bar. The bricks were to be put side by side and grasped, two in each hand, between the thumb and fingers, the fingers pointing down. I was not allowed to stop and rest, nor to put the bricks down.

"Well, thought I, that's $2 easily earned, so I took the bet and started. For a quarter of the distance it was easy and I already felt those two silver dollars in my pocket. But then my fingers began to grow tired. The muscles between my forefingers and thumbs were soon aching terribly. My arms began to pain me and to throb like mad. I found myself setting my teeth together and the cords in my neck were in a high state of tension. When I came within a hundred yards of the hotel there was scarcely an inch in my whole body that was not aching as if I had been stuck full of pins.

"I don't know how I managed to go that last little distance. I could no longer stand erect, and I was trembling like a leaf, and yet the other fellow was alongside, laughing as if to split his sides. And when I got into the bar-room, it was all I could do to raise first one hand and then the other and put the bricks on the counter. I know that I couldn't have gone 50 feet farther. I got the $2, but the next day I could scarcely move, and I didn't get over the soreness for a week. It looks easy, but just you try it."—Detroit Free Press.

THE DOORBELL.

It Tells What Manner of Man You
Are by Your Ring.

Doorbells are pretty fair indicators of character. Probably you have not been conscious of it, but every time you pull a doorbell you register what manner of man you are. Your ring will not tell everything about you, from the color of your eyes to your taste in flowers, but to those who know the signs the doorbell is as good as a title page. Any one who has had occasion to answer bell pulls knows how much difference there is in them. One person's method varies little from time to time, though the difference between that method and somebody else's, while slight, will be sufficiently well marked. It is seldom that two rings are exactly alike.

The housewife recognizes each, the impatient man, who pulls the bell twice in quick succession and does not wait long before trying it again; the one of more phlegmatic temperament, whose ring is slower and more substantial; the hesitating woman, who draws the knob out in a succession of nervous jerks; the seedy individual with matches to sell, who stretches the wire carefully to its full length and then allows it to relax with a faint, apologetic tinkle, and the jolly friend, who knows he is welcome, and therefore grasps the knob with a hearty swing that is fairly eloquent with good nature, and sets the bell to shaking its sides with such peals of echoing laughter that it positively cannot stop at once, but subsides gradually with a merry, irrepressible little titter. A doorbell has as many voices as visitors.—Berlin (Md.) Herald.

A Tough Bantam.

A letter in a Glasgow paper records a phenomenon much too remarkable to be reserved for Scottish consumption. The writer says: "An acquaintance of mine, who lives up north, has among others of the feathered tribe a little bantam cock. A few weeks ago he noticed that it was looking the worse for a slight difference of opinion with a canine friend, but did not examine it closely till his mother's and sisters' vociferations brought him in a hurry. There was the bantam picking away at corn, but the corn was dropping from a rent in the bird's chest just as fast as it was lifted. Not wanting to kill the bird, my friend got a needle and some horsehair and stitched up the tear, with the result that the bird now is as good as new."

To Test Wall Papers.

Arsenic is very often present in the pigment used for wall papers, and as every one knows, if one covers one's walls with a paper containing deadly poison one's health must suffer. It is important, therefore, to select wall papers which do not contain arsenic, and the method of testing them is simple in the extreme. Take a piece of the paper and light it, and if arsenic be present you will notice an odor like that of garlic. Do not inhale the smoke. Another way of testing the paper is to pour over it a little diluted hydrochloric acid. If the greens in the pattern become blue in this treatment it is because they contain arsenic.—Home Notes.

Be Comfortable.

Devote your energies to being comfortable. Nothing will aid you so much as simplicity. Don't try to follow all the fads invented by fools. In the first place, get a comfortable place to live. Get a good cellar. Get a good cistern. Fix your water pipes so they won't freeze. Fix yourself so that you can be warm in winter and reasonably cool in summer. Have things "handy" around the house. Give up your membership in literary and card clubs and devote your attention to your own affairs. If you can't find enough to keep you busy, it is a sign you don't look very closely.—Atchison Globe.

THE BREAD PROBLEM.

Among the problems that have occupied public attention the bread problem from the beginning has received more thought and consideration than all others that have been presented to the human mind for solution. A result of thought on the question has been the colonization of new lands and the settlement of far-away countries from the great centers of civilization, and to solve the question wild lands have been subdued to provide bread. The bread question is included in all questions that are presented for settlement. The good of the people who labor for their daily bread will be among enlightened men the chief problem presented for consideration and solution in all future time.

To the bread problem, as there is to all problems and conditions in nature, there is an opposite problem or condition, all of which opposites are useful when under proper and wholesome restraint, but when an opposite condition succeeds in gaining ascendancy over its opposite, it is subdued as heat subdued cold. We have ascertained that opposing forces are a condition in nature, and all there is in nature is subject to opposites or opposing forces. All these forces in their operation may not have been fully ascertained, but that has nothing to do with the fact of their existence in nature.

The force or opposite to the bread problem may not be understood in all of its methods of applying its opposite force to labor; but sufficient is understood by the most casual observer to furnish means of information sufficient to convince the judgment of each observer that an opposing force is in full operation.

When we have ascertained that the money power is the opposing force among civilized men the question that is presented for solution to labor is how to overcome the opposing force of the money power in connection with the problem of labor. The only solution that is presented to the intelligence of labor is organized force or effort.

There can be no effective opposing force to the money power till effort is consolidated. Labor may organize for its protection, and it may use the means and force of the strike principle for its protection, and any other means it may have, and to all of which means and force organized capital will turn an ear that hears not, because the means applied will pass without in the least disturbing the schemes of capital.

Organized labor should have learned to its advantage that each strike is used to provide more secure means to control labor and each endeavor to procure means to control labor, if successful, will enslave it more by making it subject, in an extended sense, to organized capital.

The means of the strike are effectual in a certain sense, but the effect is limited when compared with the force that can be used through political effort. Through political effort the force of labor can reach the fountain from which flows the power of organized capital which is law, and so long as law force can be used against labor the strikes and other efforts made by it will be unavailing for permanent and effective use.

Labor has within its reach all the means required to give it protection against organized capital through the ballot by placing its friends in power who will furnish protection and law force to labor through laws enacted in its interest.

The money power has full control of the government in its departments, executive, legislative and judicial, and labor has no voice in government. Capital dictates terms to its departments, in like manner as Charles Wallace dictates to the government of Nevada.

The money power directs the appointment of government executive officers and others who are ministerial in their official functions and labor is not considered in all the rounds of government authority. Organized capital and it only, receives attention and when capital determines to retain power when no other means will secure it the money power that owns and runs the government provides the money to buy it.

The people are a means to secure an end that the money power has in view and that is their absolute obedience to its will, which will make the bread problem more hard to solve as the years go by, because there will be continually more required of the means to secure the end.

BOER WAR.

The Boer war continues on one side of the difficulty. The Boers appear to have matters very much their own way at present. How long it will be so is doubtful, as the future successes of the Boers cannot be many. Ladysmith has not capitulated, and the Boers have no time to lose in the work they have undertaken, as the British will relieve General White at the earliest possible moment. The British forces to the number of 20,000 will be in South Africa in a few days, and the first work of this army will be to march on Ladysmith to relieve General White.

The Boers continue to advance south and the Free State forces have invaded Cape Colony, and the work of invasion by the Dutch goes bravely on. Martial law has been declared in Natal, which is intended to control the Dutch in the north part of that country, who continue to give dialoyal intimations by their movements.

PHILIPPINE WAR.

Reports of November 6th state that our forces encountered the rebels at several points and drove them away. Our casualties were 12 wounded and the rebel loss in killed and wounded was about 120. A large amount of rebel transportation was captured. Rain continues to fall and the roads in many places are impassable.

GENERAL COMMITTEE, IMPROVEMENT CLUB

Holds a Rhetorical Session--Offer By Congressman Newlands.

Interest and oratory were distinctive features of the meeting of the general committee of the Reno Improvement Club last evening in the office of F. H. Norcross.

All the committeemen but two were present and there were several interested spectators besides.

President Martin was in the chair. Chairman Bragg of the Highway Committee reported on correspondence with a number of firms relative to the cost of bituminizing a block of Virginia street. The matter was discussed but no definite steps were taken.

Congressman Newlands addressed the committee. He will experiment with the paving question and will lay a cross walk at his own expense from the Sunderland to the Fletcher building. It will be fifteen feet wide and constructed of hard burnt brick. This experiment is to demonstrate the lasting qualities of this material for street work.

A communication was received from the Carson Chamber of Commerce relative to co-operation in attempting to secure concessions in fares and freight tariffs. The matter was referred to the committee on Transportation.

Chairman Thyes of the Protection Committee reported on the progress of the committee's work in the matter of securing the installation of the Gamewell fire alarm system.

The Nevada Power and Transportation Project Has Become Somewhat Disfigured--First Chapter of a Very Interesting Serial Story.

In yesterday's issue the JOURNAL promised its readers a sensation. It hinted that there would appear in these columns an expose of a financial scheme that had been hatched in this community, and which had for its purpose the enrichment of its promoters, those gentlemen not being particularly concerned as to the fate that would be met by those who invested money in their enterprise.

The Nevada Power and Transportation company is the outfit that we had reference to. In this, and probably succeeding articles, we will endeavor to tell about some of the inner workings of this corporation which we believe to have been conceived in iniquity, but on that point we do not care at present to express any positive opinion. Our readers are at liberty to judge of that for themselves.

Several months ago this incorporation was formed and its promoters waved banners and blared upon trumpets to announce to the world that they had accomplished wonderful things. So they might have. They had an opportunity to establish near this city a plant that would have resulted in the upbuilding of western Nevada. Some day these plans will be carried into effect. We are willing to wager, however, that the N. P. & T. company will not be the agency that accomplishes the work.

Captain W. F. Mills, who says he is from San Francisco and who claims to be a retired sea captain, is one of the gang. Captain Mills formulated, or assisted in formulating this company in order, as he avows, to have cheap electric power conducted to some "mines" he owns.

Monsieur la Capitaine is almost sole owner of a group of long abandoned claims in Peavine. The writer will express as his candid opinion that the Captain is laboring under a delusion when he expatiates upon the value of these "mines." He carries with him an assay blank which purports to give the value of his Peavine ore. The assayer's figures read, $140 a ton in gold, silver and copper. Some time ago Captain Mills carefully sorted a few sacks of this rock which he sent to Selby's. The returns were much more like 14 cents than $140.

After telling the writer that this ledge from which the big assays were obtained was four feet wide, I examined for myself and saw in a crosscut, the lowest workings, a seam that started at the width of a man's hand and narrowed until not even a trace remained.

So much for the Grey Eagle mine in Peavine.

Captain Mills is chief owner of the Rattlesnake mine, which is a location on a ledge (what a word!) 350 feet wide. Another "ledge" of equal width parallels it, and is also located.

On solicitation of Mills, the writer accompanied him to the Rattlesnake some weeks ago. He found two men at work under direction of the captain, cleaning out an abandoned tunnel that had been run by some idiot a little less than a hundred years ago. The "ledge" contains no quartz that the writer could see, but the captain informed him that his eyes deceived him. He also sprung some more assay blanks. That was too much for doubting Thomas. The dyke was written up as it is, but the writer could barely recognize it in the paper next morning, it had been so perverted by the captain's proof marking.

I am not condemning the "ledge," I simply say that I would not throw a piece of that ore at my bitterest enemy, or build an outhouse foundation with it.

Willis G. Caffrey, a professor on the salary list of the State University, saw that the N. P. and T. company was a fine proposition to invest in, and he bought a couple of hundred thousand dollars worth of stock. His dividends have not yet enabled him to retire from the position he occupies. The regents may have offered him large inducements to remain. Caffrey owns a horseless wagon which is a good thing. He claims to have traded it and a few acres of waste land down the road for his stock, but we believe he paid cash for it, because it would be rather hard for him to deliver the goods. The horseless carriage, we learned in a dream, is in the stable of a man who advanced a lot of money to boom the auto-mobile and is waiting until Mr. Caffrey finds time to sign his name to a bit of paper. This, however, was all learned in a dream.

Henry Anderson, Sardis Summerfield, Henry Riter and Lester H. Williams, all of this city, were identified with the project at its inception. These are men who are ever ready to support any undertaking that is legitimate and seems to be for the upbuilding of the community.

They gave their money and their time, but their business sense prompted them to inquire into certain matters, which we will probably tell the reading public about tomorrow in case Mills and Caffrey try to raise a stinkum over this article. Anderson, Williams and Summerfield lost no time in severing their connection with the enterprise, Rattlesnake and all.

Mr. Riter still is identified with the remnants of the N. P. & T. Co. and we must say this in favor of our townsman: He still retains a hope that all will yet be well and that the project has a future. We agree with him there. It has a future when men of financial standing (we almost said integrity) unravel this tangled web of deception in which the project is ensnared and prick the bag of wind which at present is its unstable foundation.

Note—This article is from my pen. I don't say this boastfully, but merely to enable the heroes in this play (first act only given so far) to know whom to swear at, if they are profane, or to sue, if they are disposed thusly. The article appears without knowledge of the management of this paper.

THE GREEDY CATFISH.

His Eating Capacity as Wonderful
as His Hold on Life.

The catfish belongs to an ancient type not yet fully made into a fish, and hence those whose paired fins are all properly fastened to the head, as his
are not, hold him in well merited scorn. He has no scales and no bright colors. His fins are small and his head and mouth are large. Around his mouth are eight long "smellers," fleshy feelers, that he pushes out as he crawls along the bottom in search of anything that he may eat. As he may eat anything, he always finds it.
His appetite is as impartial as that of a goat. Anything, from a dead lamprey or a bunch of sunfish eggs to a piece of tomato can, is grateful to him.

In each of the fins, which represent his arms, is a long, sharp bone, with a silvery surface and a serrated edge.
These are fastened by a ball and socket joint, and whenever the fish is alarmed the bone is whirled over and set in place; then it sticks out stiffly on each side. There is another such bone in the fin on the back, and when all of these are set there is no fish that can swallow him.

When he takes the hook, which he surely will do if there is any hook to be taken, he will swallow it greedily.
As he is drawn out of the water he sets his three spines and laughs to himself as the boy pricks his fingers trying to get the hook from his stomach. This the boy is sure to do, and because the boy of the Mississippi valley is always fishing for catfish is the reason why his fingers are always sore. The catfish is careless of the present and sure of the future. After he is strung on a birch branch and dried in the sun and sprinkled with dust and has his stomach dug out to recover the hook, if he falls into the brook he will swim away. He holds no malice and is ready to bite again
at the first thing in sight.—Popular Science Monthly.

CHINESE COURT HISTORIANS

They May Write the Truth, For Their Work is Secret.

There are court historians in China,
as there are in other countries, but there is one striking difference, and it lies in the fact that the work of the Chinese court historians does not see the light until the reigning dynasty comes to an end.

In this way these Celestial historians have an opportunity to describe most truthfully the virtues and vices of the victorious rulers and the real significance of the events which take place during their regime. They can write what they please without fear of censure, for they know that their work will not be published as long as the reigning dynasty lasts.

This has been the rule for more than 2,000 years, the first court historian having been appointed by the imperial house of Han, which reigned from 206 B. C. until 25 A. D.

The duty of these historians is to write plain accounts of all the events that occur during their tenure of office. At regular intervals their completed work is taken from them and is locked up in an iron safe or vault.
There it remains until the first member of a new dynasty ascends the throne.

It is then given with all the other historical records in the vault to the court historian, who is then living, and from the mass of documents he is expected to prepare a truthful history of the dynasty which has just expired. The present dynasty has been reigning since 1644 and consequently no court history has been published since that date.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Route as Pronounced.

There are numerous excuses for the pronunciation of the word route, and a man may hardly go amiss to choose his own style. Down south they say always rowt. In the north, among the educated classes, we hear root. Here also we hear, lower down, especially among the hyphenated Americans, rut.
The Irish, even big folk, say rut. The original Webster gives the pronunciation as rowt, with an admission of root. We have adopted root because of a French leaning. The word rut, meaning a deep track in a roadway,
cut by the rim of a wheel, is simply a contraction of route and root. The Century dictionary says root or rowt, preference for root. We also say routine for routine; why not, therefore, root for route? Rowtine would sound
funny.—New York Press.

ALFRED CHARTZ.
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW.

CARSON CITY — NEVADA

He Didn't Like Pledges.

Judge Martin Grover of Troy, N. Y., was at one time approached by a young citizen who wished to be nominated to the state assembly. The shrewd old judge had certain doubts about him,
which he expressed somewhat freely,
and yet he was willing to afford him a trial. He therefore addressed the aspirant in this way:

"Young man, if you will give me your word that you won't steal when you get to Albany, I'll see what kin be done about sendin you there."

"Judge Grover," replied the young man, drawing himself up with great dignity, "I go to Albany unpledged or I don't go at all."

WOOD TAR.

It is curious to note that wood tar is prepared just as it was in the fourth century, B. C. A bark is chosen and a hole dug, into which the wood is placed, covered with turf. A fire is lighted underneath, and the tar slowly drips into the barrels placed to receive it.

A Chinese Custom.

On the accession of the new emperor of China, he goes in solemn state to the "Temple of Heaven," in Peking, and formally announces to his imperial predecessors the new titles and dignities which he has assumed.

His View of It.

A little boy had been sent to the dairy to get some eggs, and on his way back he dropped the basket containing them.

"How many did you break?" asked his mother.

"Oh, I didn't break any," he replied,
"but the shells came off some of them."
